Showfootage.com offers inexpensive videos for the iPod

Humphrey Cheung 7 Nov 2005 22:05

Marburg (Germany) - After shelling out several hundred dollars for a video iPod, their new owners - estimated to already number at least several hundred thousand - are looking for an inexpensive source of videos. Showfootage.com has started offering thousands of video clips for as low as $1.24 each. The company is also offering a free clip in a weekly podcast via iTunes.

Most of the clips being sold are known in the video business as "stock footage" - Clips that have swirling colors or depict natural environments (think waterfalls and beaches). The clips are 2 to 20 second long and come in two qualities: 800 X 600 and 320 X 240. Once purchased, the videos can either be downloaded from the website or sent on a CD/DVD.
